KILLS FOREIGNER,
THEN DRAGS BODY
INTO OLD CELLAR*Crime at Scottsdale is Discovered by Trail Along Ground.*JOHN KEISER IS THE VICTIM*Superintendent of Crescent Plant Is Man Who Finds Body but Murderer
Leaves No Trace; Everson Man Is Shot Near a House in Swedetown.*Special to The Courier.*SCOTTSDALE, May 7.
With two bullets through his chest, the body of a man was dragged from the street car line in North Scottsdale, over the ground several hundred feet and hidden in the cellar of the old cutlery works sometime during last night. The body was unearthed, as that of Joseph Karsznarski, or Josef Keiser, a Polish resident.The body was discovered about 1 o'clock this morning by H. B. Lee, superintendent of the Crescent Manufacturing Company, which adjoins the cutlery works. Mr. Lee saw marks on the ground as if something had been drawn along, and thought some one had stolen a large bolt and hauled it away. C. E. Hartman and W. P. Hartman, two employees who come from Connellsville, had just arrived and told Mr. Lee they noticed the trail when they got off the street car.*The three men followed the trail from in front of the Crescent office to the rear and in the cellar of the cutlery works. Going down the steps, a glance behind the door revealed the body.*That the work was that of one man would appear from the fact that when the trail started, the man had been dragged so that his feet touched the ground, the toes of his shoes being worn and covered with dust.*Apparently the load grew too heavy, for the body was dragged by the feet after it had been hauled alone for a short distance. The coat, shirt and undershirt were pulled over the man's head, and the hands, which had been bound, were now loose, the wrists smooth like tanned leather. There were no cuts on the body, but the elbows were worn where they had touched the ground. There were some minor scratches about the face, but apparently made after death. If two men had been in the affair they could have carried the body.*In the pockets there was a little tobacco, but no money. A butcher's book from M. M. Trout and an insurance book, the latter with payments marked to April 28, were found. Each had the name of Joseph Karsznarski, or in English, Josef Keiser, and were found in the clothing. The man had found a new straw hat and this had been carried with the body and the body was lying on it.*It was said that people residing about the cutlery works heard a single shot about 10 o'clock. Between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning they heard dogs making a disturbance.*Keiser was employed at the United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Company and had been in this country a number of years. Clyde Trout, who said that Keiser had bought meat from their shop for the last five years, saw him pass the store going in the direction of North Scottsdale, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He did not see him after.*The body was brought to the morgue of William Smith, who notified the state police at Greensburg, and a detail of the troopers was sent to Scottsdale as soon as they could get from Greensburg. Keiser was a resident of Evanson and a widower.*District Attorney W. T. Dom, Conner H. A. McMurray and three state constables reached Scottsdale this morning and began an investigation. They are working in conjunction with Chief Frank McCudden of the Scottsdale police force.*Chief McCudden learned from Engineer B. T. Smith and Joe Patel that while on a locomotive near the Scottsdale line last night they saw and heard two shots fired near a house in Swedetown. The flash of the powder and report of the discharge were clear.*With this clue to work upon the police believe they will have little difficulty in running down the actual murderer.*FULL CREW REFERENDUM*Railroads Will Put Law Up to Vote of People in Missouri.*ST. LOUIS, May 7.
A conference of railway vice presidents and general managers decided to invoke the referendum in an effort to set aside the Full Crew Law passed by the last Legislature. Circumlocution of referendum petitions soon will be begun. If 3 per cent of the voters in 11 congressional districts sign petitions the law will be suspended until submitted to popular vote November 11.The Full Crew law provides that on every passenger train of 10 or more coaches there must be at least two brakemen, and on every freight train of 10 or more cars there must be at least three brakemen. It is said the law would cost Missouri railroads $700,000 a year.*Murder at Derry.

FRIEDMANN CURE DISCUSSED*Fayette Medics Are Addressed in Unlouftown by Laboratory Expert
of Pittsburgh.*Dr. Ernest Willets of Pittsburgh was the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Fayette County Medical Society last evening in Unlouftown. Doctors from all over the county were present. Dr. Willets is regarded as one of the most competent laboratory men in the country and has authority on serums and vaccines. His subject last evening was "Laboratory Aids in Diagnosis."*Dr. Willets spoke of the Friedmann cure, claiming that Dr. Friedmann presented no positive proof where his treatment has been of any value, and condemned his efforts to obtain money from the credulous patients. He said the preparation of tubercular cures was nothing new, and the best results can be obtained by a general practitioner who uses the fresh air cure.*Mr. Jones of the National Child Labor Committee, addressed the doctors on the Walnut Child Labor Bill which is before the State Senate. The bill was unanimously endorsed by the doctors.*Dr. McCormick of Connellsville, Hoover of Brownsville and Blenham of Unlouftown compose a committee of three doctors who will be able to avoid the expense of the trip to Pittsburgh for a higher education at small cost.*One of the most valuable scholarships offered the graduates is from the University of Pittsburgh. Prof. C. H. Robinson of that school visited the high school recently and after delivering a brief address at morning chapel, handed Principal B. B. Smith a letter from Dr. S. B. Lenhart, outlining the offer of the university.*The student carrying the most honor in the class will be given the privilege of accepting the scholarship. If this student does not accept the offer, the second one in the standing will be given the opportunity of taking a course in any of the undergraduate schools of the university.*Other scholarships offered include one from Bayard College for Women, one from Yale, one from Harvard, one from the College of New Rochelle, one from the Pennsylvania College for Women, one from Allegheny, one from Bucknell and one from Göttingen.*A representative of Yale was here recently and made a general offer for any male student of the class who is worthy of assistance and who is unable to meet the expense of a course to go to Yale with expenses paid by the alumni association of the college.*The House passed the Cochran resolution providing for an investigation of the white slave traffic in Pennsylvania and appropriating $10,000 for the expenses of the investigation. The bill now goes to the Senate.*MORE BOMBS FOUND*Suffragettes Attempt to Blow Up St.
Paul's Cathedral.*LONDON, May 7.*A business-like looking bomb, connected with a clock and battery, was found today under the throne in St. Paul's Cathedral by an attendant when attention had been attracted to the striking of a clock. The bomb failed to contain enough powder to blow up the altar choir and pipe organ.*Another bomb was found in Bowyer street, opposite the office of the Evening Star and close by Temple Chambers.*The erected pavilion at Fulham and several bungalows at Ranelagh were destroyed by fire during the night.*The Home Office places the blame for these outrages on the suffragettes, who have threatened a nation-wide campaign of revenge for the defeat of the suffragette bill in the House of Commons, 200 to 219, last night.*ASKS NON-SUITE.*Penny Mink Motion in Damage Case at Greensburg.*The plaintiffs closed their testimony at Greensburg yesterday afternoon in the suit of Lawrence Shaw and William A. Shupe and wife of Mount Pleasant against the Pennsylvania railroad. A motion by the counsel for the defendant asking for a compulsory non-suit, Judge Doty, before whom the case was tried, will pass upon the motion today.*The suit grows out of the death of Lawrence Shupe, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shupe of Mount Pleasant, who was killed at Streeter's crossing, February 8, 1912. Lawrence Shaw, the other plaintiff, was injured.*GOES TO DUNGEON.*Dave Long Is Too Lively for an Ordinary Cell.*After a long period of disease, the dungeon in city hall was occupied yesterday, when Chief of Police George Hezel found it necessary to call for the confinement of David Long.*He was arrested on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and had been sentenced by Justice J. L. Evans yesterday morning to serve a term of 22 hours in a cell. When the chief placed him in the lockup, Long created such a disturbance that it was deemed necessary to remove him to the underground cell.Long was taken to the dungeon and was confined there in darkness until he promised to behave."QUIZ" FOR MINE FOREMEN.*Thirty-five Applicants Take Examination in Charleroi.*This is the first official visit of the Spanish King to France since 1805, when an attempt to take his life was made, the would-be assassin throwing a bomb at the king's carriage which exploded, injuring 26 persons.*Order Saloons Closed.
CHARLESTON, May 7.—Adjutant General Elliott today ordered all of the saloons in the Palm and Cabin Creek districts closed. Several disturbances have occurred among the strikers during the last few weeks and it is to stop those affairs that the order was issued.Former Burned to Death.

By*it is believed that action taken in the Schmidt case will prove an entering wedge.*It is evident that Main street residents are complaints with Council.*The Pittsburg sidewalkers are dispersed in several places with stones which take up the greater portion of the sidewalk. Several of these are at points where there is virtually no street illumination and that persons have not been injured because of the

HELPFUL TO WOMEN.

An Institution That Advises and Assists Them in Money Matters.

The average woman knows little about finance, yet, by the death of a husband or father, she is often suddenly placed in a position where good judgment in financial matters is necessary. A woman so placed can find a reliable adviser and agent in the Young Trust Company. It can prevent her from making serious mistakes—give her just the competent assistance in making investments, managing property and settling up capital debts, etc. Young capital invites women to bring their financial problems, whether large or small, to it. The checking and savings accounts of women are also inflated. Four per cent paid on savings.

A Lost Bank Check.

When a bank check is lost, it does not mean the money is lost. If the check is drawn in favor of a definite individual or business house, it must be endorsed before it will be paid at the bank. Payment should always be stopped on any check that has been mislaid or lost, that is security against having it paid on a forged endorsement. A check is the safest form for making remittances in payment of personal, household or business expenses. The Citizens National Bank, 133 Pittsburg street, welcomes deposits subject to check.—Adv.

EXAMS FOR POSTMASTERS

WASHINGTON, May 7. The action of former President Taft in placing all fourth-class postmasters under civil service will probably be overthrown by President Wilson.

Mr. Burleson declared that the act of placing all fourth-class postmasters under the regulations of the civil service law without their taking the requisite examinations was unjust and unfair and a violation of the civil service laws.

Twenty-four tests for foremen will be given. The questions given yesterday afternoon and this morning follow:

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, MAY 7, 1913.

RAIDING THE PRIMARIES.

The passage of the Flynn bill, designed to prevent the raiding of primary elections, is a matter for congratulation by the honest citizens of all political parties.

Under our present primary election laws it is possible, and it has become a common practice, for corrupt and designing party adherents to vote any primary ticket which promises the greatest hope of personal or political reward. As a result of this condition party nominations have been made with the large assistance of members of other political parties who have no real interest in the fact that primary ticket at the general election.

Fayette county has witnessed some gross examples of this practise, and in fact very few counties are free from it. These conditions bring home to us the necessity of the Flynn bill or some similar enactment.

The bill will not affect the voter in his right at the polls to vote for any candidate on any ticket, but will merely permit the voters of one party to make their nominations without interference on the part of others.

Generally and more largely speaking, it may be said that any primary election system which puts it in the power of one party to unduly influence the primaries of another is the proper method of ensuring that party candidates undesirable and unwelcome because of their unworkfulness and weakness, strikes at the very root of free government.

The present primary law has been choppier at the root too long, and the Flynn bill, though a little late, is none the less welcome.

The Honorable Victor Murdoch, the bawling Bull Moose from the back lots of Kansas, called the roll of his imaginary slaves just inside the Capitol steps at Washington, and to his great surprise and indignation he found some of them missing, mostly from Pennsylvania. There are a number of Pennsylvanians who account themselves quite as big as the Iowas, Vicks, and all know Doc Barthold is a darn sight bigger.

The cubist down in the latest. It's on the square.

Charles M. Schwab says he never made the statement that he would close down the Bethlehem plant if the Wilson bill passed. We will have to take Charlie's word for it, even if he has been a long time retelling his denial.

Senator Works of California is a dead statesman.

If the advent of the Western Maryland improves the passenger service of the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio railroads, the new railroad will have another mark to its credit in the books of Connellsville.

It is not necessary to be a neophyte to be successful in trial, but it helps a lot.

Some public positions are not sinecures. The postoffice inspector, for example, who had to go into the wilds of Mexico to hunt an imaginary saw-mill among beasts, reptiles, and revolutionists, had a task that would have called forth the restlessness of most officeholders.

London suffragettes are burning the hospitals and dynamiting the hotels and threatening to levy war in case Parliament refuses to give them their "rights." They have too many rights now. What they need is some justice.

A chicken thief is a pirate with wings.

The Honorable Herkey Boyd of Scotland is a foreboding politician. When the Butt Moose State Treasurer opened shop yesterday, he was the first man at the pie counter, and he grabbed a generous and juicy slice, too.

The dust investigators have made the rather late discovery that the automobiles make dust. They probably make most of it. As a dust-producer, the frolicsome wind is a bad dust to the busby wagon.

The peace of the suburban South Side is again fitfully fevered. The Savages have long since been assimilated and trained to peace and industry, but a new tribe seems to have arisen, and judging from some of its achievements it must be Apache origin.

The Democrats propose to adjourn Congress after the passage of the Wilson bill to give the statesmen a much needed rest. Better adjourn sine die right now and give the country a rest.

In court and in the mine boss examinations, character is valuable.

The Flynn reformers find no fault with the dual jobs when they get 'em.

The spring is too dry. A little more rainfall would have made more valuable growth and saved much valuable timber.

West Virginia has oil and natural gas as well as coal, and all are found in the same field. But the fact does not make the state's coal lands any more valuable. A gas well in a coal seam is a menace.

The Little Giant turns out some big railroad men.

The Ohio Republicans are getting together. Reason is returning to the State of Sherman and Garfield and McKinley.

The California Sentinel "does not care to go record as the champion of bloated corporations," but it isn't going to undertake to figure out the ultimate motive which prompted the West Penn to reduce the lighting rate.

THE MINSTREL.
The third annual Grand Army Band minstrel given at the Scottsdale Theatre last night and to be repeated tonight was by far the most successful of the three amateur productions by that popular organization. The band was called to the stage from the audience, cheering to the object of dartering canes, while the girls caused much merriment. The actors of the first part were excellent. In the second part there were numerous novelties. Alex Leinenweber with a monologue was an attraction added at the last moment and one that took well. In the grand take-walk with four couples R. B. Beckell and Walter Lockard were given the cake.

BASEBALL.
The Keystone team which will play the Connellsville Independents at Loucks Park Saturday on account of afternoon easily triumphed the Monarchs of the Lake City League by a score of 11 to 6. ANOTHER BIG SHOW ABSORBED

The Hagenbeck-Wallace Institution is greatly enlarged.

Judging from information at hand the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows must be the standard of excellence by which all other amusement enterprises should be measured. When these shows exhibit here Friday, May 11, it will be the foundation for the insertion of superlatives and antithesis will be apparent.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows have grown to a triple-featured enterprise that is more comprehensive than any other tented institution. In its augmented form it embraces besides the great Wallace Circus and original Hagenbeck Train and Wild Animal Show an East Indian Civilization and Indian Festival that would rival the Lions of Beishazar and put into oblivion the Oriental conductor and glories of the famous Arabian Nights. In offering for its zenith of grandeur no effort or expense is spared to build an exhibition of such tremendous scope that failure at

In place of being taken internally this new treatment is in the form of a vapor and is applied over the throat and chest in vapor cases being covered with warm flannel cloths.

The heat of the body liberates soothing antiseptic vapors that are inhaled with each breath. At the same time the preparation is absorbed through the skin, relieving the soreness and tightness.

Croup is actually relieved in fifteen minutes while the worst colds go over night. For all bronchial and catarrhal troubles, sore throat, hoarseness and throat, breathing this new treatment will be found especially effective.

It is a positive protection against pneumonia in its early stages and in advanced cases the medicated vapors inhaled loosen the phlegm and ease the difficult breathing. Its use does not interfere with other forms of treatment.

All the leading druggists now have this new treatment in the form of a vapor and is applied over the throat and chest in vapor cases being covered with warm flannel cloths.

DRUGGISTS HERE HAVE SOMETHING NEW FOR COLDS

An External Treatment That Vaporizes When Applied Over the Throat and Chest

COLDS GO OVER NIGHT CROUP IN 15 MINUTES

Connellsville Druggists are giving with each sale a refund blank, good for money back if not delighted.

Since its introduction here a short time ago the new treatment for cold troubles known as Vick's Croup and Phlegmatic Salve has aroused a great deal of interest among Connellsburg people, especially among mothers who have small children.

The local druggists report quite a number who have taken advantage of the 70-day trial offer to see if Vick's really will relieve croup and colds quicker than internal medicines. With each purchase there is given a refund blank showing the date of sale. If you do not find this treatment perfectly satisfactory return this blank to your druggist any time within a month from date of purchase and your money will be promptly refunded.

In place of being taken internally this new treatment is in the form of a vapor and is applied over the throat and chest in vapor cases being covered with warm flannel cloths.

MRS. WORRY—The Mystery of the Missing Husband.

OLD SHIP NIAGARA IS TO SAIL AGAIN ON INLAND LAKE

Raised From the Bottom of Erie Harbor for Celebration.

SANK JUST A CENTURY AGO

Will be Partly Rebuilt and Will Cruise Great Lakes this Summer as Feature of Celebration of Commodore Perry's Victory, in Which She Figured.

Some time this summer the ship Niagara, famous as the flagship of the heroic Commodore Perry's squadron, will again sail the waters of Lake Erie, where she conquered the British fleet and at the bottom of which she has lain a hundred years.

By a feat of engineering which has no exact parallel the Niagara has been brought to the surface of the lake and prepared for towing to a nearby shipyard. When she has been repaired and partly rebuilt she will set sail on her last splendid cruise.

Gaily decorated and manned by a full crew, the old ship will call at all the principal ports of the great lakes. The cruise will be a feature of the forthcoming celebration of the great victory by which Commodore Perry saved the fortunes of the United States a century ago.

To attempt to lift the bulk from the mud of Erie harbor was a daring idea from the start. To make the project a fact required courage and perseverance of a high order. Many were the scoffers. It was said to the very last that the contractor had hold of an old cannibal boat and not till the gun ports of the Niagara appeared above the surface of the lake did the great crowds ashore concede that Perry's ship was actually being raised.

Many Curio Seekers.
When the gun ports came in sight a throng of half frozen curio seekers was held back with difficulty. Once it became evident that the battered hulk was actually that of the Niagara the scoffers were eager to rush upon the wreck and tear bits to pieces for souvenirs. Blinding snow and crackling ice seemed no deterrent to their frenzy.

Raising the vessel from the lake was a task of almost appalling difficulty. The work had to be done in winter in order to use spring to get the vessel in shape. Winter on the great lakes is such as to make a naturally delicate job of this sort well nigh impossible.

The Interstate board of the centennial celebration had official charge of the work. To raise the hulk took just three months. The original contract called for the task to be done in thirty days, but bad weather knocked this schedule sky high.

It was planned at first to sink pontoons alongside the Niagara and pump them out, bringing the ship to the surface with them. Had the weather permitted this the salvage of the hulk would have been accomplished in contract time. Storms, however, threatened the undertaking almost every day, and the contractor dared not sink his pontoons lest he lose them. Therefore four pontoons were anchored on either side of where the ship would lie when raised vertically to the lake's surface. Other pontoons were stationed over her bow and stern. Chains were made fast to the wreck by divers, and she was simply pulled up to the water's edge.

World Was Dangerous.

Ice piled up six feet high about the pontoons. Workmen were in constant danger of losing their lives in the black and icy water. Several fell into air holes in the ice, but were rescued. The Niagara had to be raised through twenty feet of water.

The Niagara and Commodore Perry's flagship, the Lawrence, were the only two vessels in the American fleet of six ships that even in 1813 could have been called men-of-war. They were 600 tons burden each, and each carried twenty guns.

The Lawrence and the Niagara, which were twenty gun ships, carried two long twelve pounders and eighteen thirty-two-pounder carronades. The long range guns were the chief dependents of the Americans. To make his carriages fire effectively Perry refitted on grape and canister shot and the favorite American ammunition, incendiary, which was made out of scraps of iron sewed up in leather bags.

Perry's force of men consisted of about 600 landsmen and sailors, many of whom had never seen salt water.

Congress voted Perry thanks, a medal and the rank of captain after his great victory of Sept. 13, 1813. The city of Boston presented him with a set of silver and other cities voted him thanks.

He assisted in the defense of Baltimore, and in the squadron that was sent to the Mediterranean in 1815 he commanded the frigate Java.

DETECTIVES WATCH BRANDT.

Former Schiffler Valet Under Surveillance at Bemidji, Minn.

Fonike E. Brandt, sentenced to thirty years imprisonment in New York on a charge of having assassinated Mortimer L. Schiff, to whom he was valet, and pardoned not long ago by Governor Sulzer, has recently been the object of a mysterious surveillance by detectives at Bemidji, Minn., where he is employed in the office of a lumber company. The appearance of the sleuths caused certain residents of Bemidji to suspect that a plot was on foot to return Brandt to prison, and the first two detectives were sent to leave town. They departed. The hint was dropped by friends Brandt has made since he began working in Bemidji.

One of the detectives, a Finkerton named Wood, is reported to have worked under the direction of an eastern law firm. Wood trailed Brandt everywhere. He left suddenly. He was replaced by Detective Bergkamp, who also left town hurriedly. The third detective appeared a few days later.

Brandt is doing his work faithfully and is gaining friends daily. Senator Nelson was instrumental in obtaining a pardon for him, and State Insurance Commissioner Preus of Minnesota obtained him his position at Bemidji.

PREACHES TO EIGHT RACES.

Pastor in New York City Has Cosmopolitan Congregation.

When the Rev. R. F. Y. Pierce celebrated the fifth anniversary of his pastorate at the Second Avenue Baptist church in New York city a few days ago he took appropriate congratulations in eight languages. In his congregation Chinese, Magyars, Italians, Greeks, Poles, Slavs, Swedes and Americans.

So large have the different divisions of nationalities in the church become that it is now proposed to have assistant ministers who will be able to speak the various languages and to take charge of members of the eight races. Fifteen thousand dollars is now being expended in building operations to accommodate the various groups.

The Second Avenue Baptist church recently employed physicians and dentists to look after the health of members of the congregation, especially the children. These men either speak the language or have interpreters.

The church is supported by the Baptist City Mission society.

"DOG POLICEMAN" IS DEAD.

Jack Walked Beats of London Patrolman as Inspector.

Jack, the London "dog policeman," officially registered as "police constable 999," is dead. He was run over by an automobile recently while faithfully discharging his duties, and the best of surgical and medical treatment failed to save his life.

Jack was a lively little fox terrier. At one time he belonged to an elderly woman, but the life he led was too slow for him, and he attached himself to the police, refusing to return to his old home. He took upon himself the duties of inspector, patrolling the "boots" to see that the policeman were attending to their duties. They always knew when Jack would turn up, for he was regular and punctual in his inspections, whether he was elected to be on day or night duty. Fires were his chief delight.

Women Workers.

According to the American Medicine, experience shows that the strain of self support is too great for female nerves and physique and early breakdown results. In very few callings do we ever find women of middle age who show anything like the comparative vigor of men of the same decade of life. As far as we know, every class of female labor is considered a temporary employment and not a life calling. It is almost invariably exchanged for the more normal family life—if the right man comes along."

PLANNING A ROBBERY.

This London Thief Was Quite Deliberate in His Preparations.

This story of an elaborately prepared crime was told by Sir Robert Anderson when he was connected with Scotland Yard, London. A criminal marked a millionaire as his quarry and rented a bedroom near the railway station from which the rich man took the train to town. Well dressed and well groomed, the criminal took his seat in the same compartment, attracting notice only by his apparent desire to remain unnoticed while he dealt with the papers he carried in a stylish hand bag.

One morning after a few such journeys he gave vent to his annoyance at having forgotten his keys. A stranger sitting in the opposite corner politely offered him his bunch in the hope that he would find on it a key to open the bag. But none of them would fit the lock. At the suggestion of the stranger, who, of course, was an accomplice, the millionaire then produced his bunch of keys, and a few seconds sufficed to enable the thief to take a wax impression of the key of the rich man's safe.

A few weeks later the millionaire's safe was rifled, and before the crime was discovered the thief was across the channel with his rich booty.—Liverpool Post.

DAINTY COBWEBS.

How Spiders' Fine Spun Threads Compare With Human Hair.

It is hard to realize how small a spider's web really is. A famous microscopist once made some interesting comparisons of a cobweb with human hair.

"I have often compared the size of the thread spun by full grown spiders with a hair of my beard," he says. "I placed the thickest part of the hair before the microscope, and, from the most accurate judgment I could form, more than 100 of the spider's threads placed side by side could not equal the diameter of one such hair. If then, we suppose such a hair to be of a round form it follows that 10,000 threads spun by the full grown spider, when taken together, will not be equal in substance to the size of single hair."

To this, if we add that 400 young spiders at the time when they begin to spin their webs are not larger than one full grown one and that each of these minute spiders possesses the same organs as the larger ones, it follows that the exceedingly small threads spun by these little creatures must be still 400 times slenderer, and consequently that 4,000,000 of these minute spiders' threads cannot equal in substance the size of a single hair."

A Playful Prelate.

Dr. Magee, who was for a brief period archbishop of York, was once induced by a friend with whom he was staying to go and hear a certain preacher.

Asked afterward what he thought of the sermon, Dr. Magee answered that he thought it was rather long. "Yes," agreed his host, who was a great admirer of the preacher, "but there was a saint in the pulpit!" "And a martyr in the pew!" was the doctor's prompt return.

The same prelate in giving advice to a newly appointed suffragan asked, "They will send for you to open churches, cemeteries, schools, vestries and cloisters, and to unveil windows and clocks, and it may be that eventually they will want you to open the same position again."

Another woman and a priest who were tried at the same time as fellow conspirators were found guilty by the military court.

DAWN AWAY ON A MATTRESS.

Doctor Was Born Through Air From Bed to Sidewalk.

The peculiar phases of the recent

in Indiana were illustrated in the death of Dr. Ernest L. Moore at Terre Haute. The great wind smashed against his office when he was asleep.

Through the falling timbers and in a shower of plaster the wind carried the physician to the sidewalk and deposited him with the mattress on which he had been sleeping at the edge of the gutter, which was full of rushing water.

There the rescuers found him and took him to a house, where he died.

WOMEN FOR POLICE FORCE.

May Serve at Topeka Under Direction of Author Sheldon.

Women will serve on the police force at Topeka, Kan., if a plan now under consideration is carried out. And as a further novelty in police administration the new mayor has appointed the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon to reorganize the department.

Dr. Sheldon is the author of the book "In His Steps." It is proposed in the plan outlined for Dr. Sheldon's guidance that college men also be tried out on the force.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

by Harry King Tootle
Illustrations by Ray Walters

DETROIT, CALIFORNIA, 1912.

"Of course," Gilbert was quick to add. "I mean as a newspaper property."

"I'm a poor man. Judge Gilbert," Wright began slowly. "I couldn't refuse to consider an offer."

He got no further, for Kendall exclaimed:

"That's what I thought."

"Wait a minute," Wright asked him, lifting his hand in warning that he had not finished. "You interrupted me before I was through. What I say is this: I couldn't refuse to consider an offer from a proper quarter."

"What does the source matter to you?" Kendall inquired. "You're human. You want money as bad as any of us."

Before replying, Wright's gaze rested for an instant on the door behind which his heart's happiness waited. Her words came to him, strengthening him to meet the tempter: "Remember, dear, in whatever you do, I'm with you. May my love and my confidence support you ever."

"I may want money—need it—worse than any of you," he confessed. "But it must come only one way—honesty."

"Notin' dishonest 'bout sellin' a paper, is there?" growled Kerr.

"I can't tell in this case until I hear what Judge Gilbert's offer is."

"It's simply this: I have some clients who wish to purchase your paper."

"Mr. Kerr and Mr. Kendall, I suppose."

"Does it make any difference to you?"

"It may to Belmont."

"What's Belmont got to do with it?" asked Kerr.

He leaned across the table and looked the boy straight in the eye, emphasizing his last words by bringing his fist down on the table with such telling point he drove home. It was a duel between him and Kerr; the others merely looked on. Never in all the days of his political activity had a man talked in this fashion to David Kerr. The audacity and fearlessness of that young man aroused his admiration. He did not let that feeling interfere, however, with his intention to destroy him utterly. The Belmont News must be muzzled, and the boy could not permit a matter of sentiment to outweigh a political necessity.

Wright merely looked at him and shook his head. What he thought he almost hated to say. It hurt him to think that they could believe he would even listen to such a proposition.

"Then," continued Gilbert, "another basis on which to deal would give you nominal control until after election, that's why I'm giving you a good chance to get out without admitting you've been 'licked.'

"Licked! Licked!" echoed Wright with fine disdain. "I've just begun to fight. You're nearer a worse do than at this minute than you ever were before in all your life. You're going down and the people of Belmont are going to keep you down if I have any thing to do with it. Don't insult me by trying to buy my paper. I've the dearest reason in the world for what I said."

The two men glared at each other, but the boss did not deny the assertion. The elder man was beginning to rage inwardly. So accustomed had he become to the exercise of autocratic power in Belmont that he could not reconcile himself to being thwarted, especially when success was so vital to him.

"There's a good profit in it for you," was the conciliatory remark of Judge Gilbert.

"In dollars and cents, perhaps," admitted Wright, "but there are some things that have a greater value than mere money; peace of mind, for instance, and the deserved respect of the community, and honor. I can't sell out the people who are depending on me the people of Belmont."

The men across the table looked at him as if they thought him crazy. They knew he had foolish ideas, but he had not dreamed he would let such an opportunity slip through his fingers. He was the owner of a newspaper that was losing money every day, and they had as much as asked him to name his own figure for his property. They could not understand how honor was part of the transaction in the sale of a newspaper, even in the last days of a strong fight against the organization. What should he care about the respect of the community when he had money enough to take him out of that community and keep him comfortable until he was ready to get another paper somewhere else to exploit his insane ideas of civic righteousness?

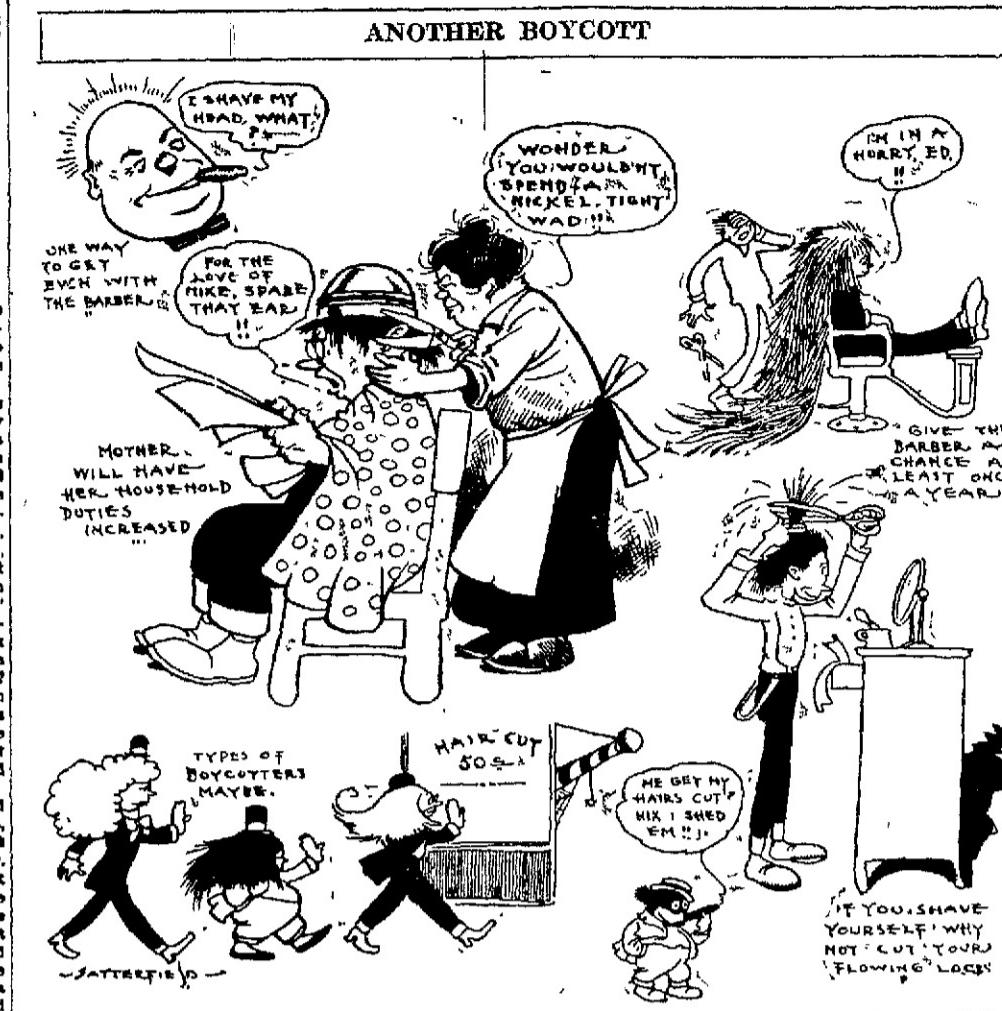

"You are just a little hasty in your judgment, Mr. Wright," Judge Gilbert said, when he saw that the publisher seemed to regard his answer as final.

"If you'll consider the matter carefully I think it'll appear to you in this light: Here's a paper that isn't making expenses. A good offer is made to you which if you are wise enough to accept will permit you to leave Belmont far richer than when you came. There are other lapses to be broken elsewhere. Why tilt here against a stone wall?"

"If it were a stone wall there'd have been no offer." Wright was shrewd enough to know that they must be in desperate straits.

"See here, young man," Kerr blazed. "you won't be able to make a go of it if you don't sell now. I'll see to it that some day the sheriff will."

This direct threat was more than he could bear. Rising from his chair and leaning across the table the publisher shook his fist in Kerr's face and told him just what he thought of the my position perfectly clear."

The men of Trenton, N. J., have threatened to boycott all the barbers of that city because of the scheme of the barbers to hereafter charge 50 cents for a haircut. The cartoonist sees some funny situations if the boycott continues very long.

CHAPTER XV.

Gloria's announced intention of returning Mrs. Hayes was not the only motive that had brought her into the library. The angry hum of voices had been borne to her even through the closed door, and with a woman's impatience and curiosity she was anxious to know what was going on. Greater than all else, however, was her desire to be with Wright. She thought that by appearing she could bring matters to a conclusion and carry off with her the man she loved. Now that she was in the library and Wright had said that he was ready to go whenever she was, David Kerr's daughter forgot about her desire to go to Mrs. Hayes.

Dr. Hayes and his wife were returning to Judge Gilbert's office when Gloria had seen them, and soon Williams ushered them into the library. The presence of the two women prevented all open discussion of political matters. Even had it not been for Miles Kerr and Mrs. Hayes there could have been no controversy, because after Wright had made his position clear he would not talk further about it. Now he was merely waiting for Gloria.

"I thought you said you wouldn't be long," was the way, in a playful attempt at seriousness, Gloria upbraided her sovereign lord when they found themselves a little apart from the others.

"It wasn't my fault," was all he could say. "You haven't told father, have you?"

"No. He wasn't in the mood for such a pleasing revelation. I hope you've thought about leaving for St. Louis tonight. It's now imperative that you go."

"I thought about it, dear, but I can't go. What would I say to father?"

Wright was on the point of again urging her to leave Belmont when he heard the faint cries of newsboys far down the street. Nearer and nearer came the boys. Louder and louder were their cries. Street sales in Belmont were so small that the little urchins who sold papers to chance customers were never very noisy. An unusual clamor on their part betokened some extraordinary piece of news. Their shouts at last began to attract the attention of others in the room. Kerr, Kendall and Hayes looked at Wright questioningly. Then, as they began to distinguish the cries of one boy in advance of the others, the three men walked hastily to the window and looked out on the street. Everyone was rushing for a paper, or else standing with the sheet in his hand staring at the first page with his big black type.

"Come, Gloria," Wright pleaded with her. "I can't go yet."

Beside her stood Williams, still engrossed in reading the flaring headlines of the paper he had brought into the room with him. She seized his paper from him and began to read the front page.

"Come, Gloria," Wright pleaded with her. "I can't go yet."

"What's that noise? What are they shouting for?" she asked. "Listen!" She put her hand on his arm as a signal to say nothing while she tried to hear what the boys were saying.

"Extry! Extry! Get a News! All about the grafters! Extry! Read the big steal! Full account o' the railroad grab! Big men and boodlers in com bin! Extry! Extry!"

It was now a flood of sound as the boys came under the window.

"What's it all about?" the girl asked.

"No," shouted Wright, "Lusted himself with indignation at the offer: 'I'll see you in hell first!'

What further might have been said there is no telling. The words were scarcely out of Wright's mouth when he saw the door opposite him open and Gloria appear. Instantly he relaxed from his tense, strained manner, and, noting his change, the other men turned to find that David Kerr's daughter was the cause. She stood in the doorway hesitatingly, recognizing that she was interrupting a business meeting.

"What's it all about?" the girl asked.

"I beg your pardon," she said, "but from the window I saw Mrs. Hayes on the street, and I thought I'd go to her."

"I'll join you," Wright announced. He left his place at the table and walked over to where Gloria was standing.

"I suppose the meeting is over," ventured Gilbert.

"It is, as far as I'm concerned," said the newspaper man. Then, looking at Kerr, he added, "I think I've made the outer office. Suddenly the door despair as she realized he was confessing.

A single movement of his head showed his ascent.

"Oh, you coward!" Her disgust was overpowering. The withering contempt she put into her words was equalized by her look of scorn. He started to speak, but with a gesture of impatience she stopped him.

"All your words are lies, lies, lies! And to think that I promised within this hour to be your wife! You make me hate myself for ever having looked at you. Now I understand why you urged me to leave Belmont." Again he tried to speak. "Not a word. I'll not listen to you. Father, take me home."

She shrank from Wright as if to look at him were dishonor.

All the great love he had for her waned forth in one cry.

"Gloria!"

The girl could not, would not hear. She had but one refuge for her breaking heart. Turning to her father she flung herself into his arms with only a single word: "Father!"

With never a word, with never a look to right or left, the man she had promised to love and who had promised to love her, walked out of the room.

Sobbing as if her heart would break, Gloria rested in her father's arms.

CHAPTER XVI.

The unexpected and sensational manner in which the visit of Joe Wright to Judge Gilbert's office was terminated was not without effect upon every one in the room. Pity for Gloria, was the dominating emotion, for everyone present realized her unhappy position. The dramatic revelation of her love affair, the knowledge that she had been sacrificed, stirred every heart. Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Hayes, not well versed in politics, harbored no slight resentment against the publisher of the News, since they regarded the article as too severe. Were not their husbands interested on the same side as David Kerr? And they were honest men. But their husbands knew the full measure of the bitterness that both the boss and his daughter, for the father's misdeeds, were called upon to drab.
